

DR. REMSEN DELIVERS ADDRESS TO SIGMA XI

Speaks at Initiation of Honor Fraternity—Professor Millikan Gives Introduction—

RECALLS FAMOUS SCIENTISTS

Professor Ira Remsen, president-emeritus of Johns Hopkins university, was the speaker at the quarterly meeting of Sigma Xi, which was held yesterday evening in Hutchinson Commons. For the first time in the history of the society, the meeting was thrown open, all graduate students being invited.

"We will not even withhold from you the most sacred of our secrets—our initiation ritual," said Professor Millikan, the president of the Chicago chapter of Sigma Xi. "We are not ashamed of our patrons, and we hope our patrons are not ashamed of us. We have, therefore, with the characteristic scientific spirit, removed the blinds and bars from our doors and windows."

In introducing President Remsen, Professor Millikan continued: "The speaker of the evening is a man who has been prominent in three fields: Investigation, Administration and Pedagogy. A triplet of this sort is a rarity."

Know Famous Scientists.

Dr. Remsen's topic was "Memories of Sylvester and Roland." Sylvester, Roland, and Dr. Remsen, were three out of the six instructors who joined the staff of Johns Hopkins at the time of its foundation. Dr. Remsen gave a series of personal reminiscences of his two colleagues in which he brought forth their various characteristics and eccentricities.

"I will not speak of the work of these two men," he said. "I am not qualified to speak of it. But I was associated with Roland from the time he came to the university until his death in 1901, and with Sylvester for seven years. Roland was a very young man when he was called to the professorship of physics at Johns Hopkins. He was a man of the very highest order, honest to a degree—too honest in fact. As a result, he was constantly in hot water with his fellow-men, and to some extent, with his fellow-women. As far as science was concerned, his ideals were of the very highest order. He was not a great teacher in the ordinary sense of the word; most of his work showed in the laboratory. It was there that most of his influence was exerted. There a large number of men came under his influence, and I am very sure that every one who had that privilege was a bigger and better man for it."

Memories of Sylvester.

"Sylvester came to us in 1876. He was a very picturesque man, with a magnificent head, and he could blush more deeply than any other man I have ever seen; and he was always getting into a condition that required him to blush. He was extremely excitable himself and was always doing something to excite others. He was a great help to us. It was truly impossible for any one to rust with Sylvester around—we felt as though an electric eel was in our midst. He, too, was

PHI PSI AND PSI U WIN

Qualify for Interfraternity Finals by Defeating Deke and Alpha Delt—Phi Alpha Delt Wins Law Championship.

Phi Kappa Psi and Psi Upsilon qualified for the finals in the interfraternity baseball championship yesterday by defeating Delta Kappa Epsilon and Alpha Delta Phi. The deciding game will probably be played early next week.

The Dekes were unable to hit Moulton, the Phi Psi twirler and fell by the one-sided score of 12 to 0. Only two hits were gathered off Moulton, and only one Deke got as far as third base. The winners on the other hand hit Northrup heavily, and were able to score at will. The Phi Psi team played a fine fielding game, only one of their opponents reaching first on an error. Schafer for the winners, and George for the Dekes, both caught good ball.

Score by innings:
Phi Psi 4 1 0 0 7 x—12

Win Close Game.

Psi U won a closely contested battle from the Alpha Delt, being forced to go nine innings before they were returned victors 11 to 9. Both teams hit the ball heavily—Cleary, the Alpha Delt pitcher, and Cummins, the Psi U twirler, being touched up for many hits. The Psi Us took the lead at the start, and held it until the seventh inning, when their opponents succeeded in tying the score. From then until the ninth, it was anyone's game. Marum caught for the winners, and Shull for the Alpha Delt.

Score by innings:
Psi U 3 1 0 1 1 2 0 0 2—10
Alpha Delt 2 0 1 0 2 0 1 2 0—9

Phi Alpha Delt Wins.

Phi Alpha Delt defeated Delta Chi in a game for the law school championship yesterday by the score 16 to 11. Lawson and Gee were the battery for the winners, and Swanson and Geister for the losers. The game was featured by heavy hitting.

CHICAGO LAW LAWYERS SNOW NORTHWESTERN MEN UNDER 17 TO 2

Strong batting on Chicago's part combined with a poor Northwestern pitching staff, gave the Law school team a decisive victory over the Northwestern barristers, Saturday. In the first inning, the Evanston men showed slight signs of baseball ability and gathered two runs. In the same inning, the University nine tied the score. After this, every Chicago man slugged the ball until, in the sixth inning, Weil, the Northwestern hurler, was removed from the mound, and Toronto substituted. Levi pitched a steady, effective game for Chicago, allowing only two hits after the first inning. In only one inning did the Maroon team fail to score.

Dictator Huerta "SIGNS UP"

Interclass Hop chairmen have set to work with a vim to "put one over" the Prom leaders and land two hundred couples at the Spring dance. Already over 100 couples have signified their intention of being present, according to General Chairman Harris. The dance will be held in Badrlett Friday, May 23.

The patrons and patronesses have been announced as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Angell.

Miss Marion Talbot.

Mrs. Ether Pollak.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Conrad Baumgartner.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis J. Fuiks.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Spindler.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Agar.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Monroe.

Huerta to Go.

"We will have a distinguished audience present," said Harris yesterday afternoon, "for I notice on the Ellis bulletin board that Victoriano Huerta of Mexico has signed up. No effort is being spared make this the best Hop ever given at the University. The decorations are a scream. Greatest of all advantages about this one dance is that no flowers or taxis are expected."

"There will be a number of alumni and members of the faculty present," he continued. "Graduate students and alumni of other colleges should turn out to see how we stack with their Alma Maters. I certainly hope we will have the desired 200 couples."

SOPHOMORES TO PLAY INDOOR BASEBALL AT BEACH PARTY TOMORROW

Sophomores will hold a beach party tomorrow at 5:30 on the shore south of the German building in Jackson park. An official nine had challenged the class team, captained by Frank Whiting, for an indoor baseball game. The picnickers will eat as guests of the class, the treasury having been drafted to provide refreshments for the party. The party will close with a rehearsal of class songs for the University sing.

DR. CROCKER SPEAKS ON WORK OF FEDERAL BUREAU OF PLANT LIFE

That the bureau of Plant Industry is doing more toward the prevention of crop destruction by insects and rusts, than any similar organization in the world, was the statement of Assistant Professor Crocker in his lecture before the Botanical club yesterday afternoon at 4:30. Dr. Crocker told of the distribution of scores of thousands of pamphlets to instruct the farmer and teach the novice in the war on crop pests. He said that millions of dollars were spent yearly on crop production.

UNIVERSITY MUSICAL CLUB IS RESULT OF COMBINED SOCIETIES

The Men's Glee club and the Mandolin club were consolidated at a meeting of the Glee club Monday. The new organization will be known as the University Musical club. The club will hold its annual dinner Tuesday night at the Hyde Park hotel at which officers for next year will be elected.

HOLD SUCCESSFUL SING

Songs by Students and Glee Club Are Given at Outdoor Musical—University Band Plays Several Numbers.

Chicago songs by student and numbers by the University band, comprised the program of the first outdoor sing of the year yesterday afternoon in Hutchinson court. Two hundred students were present when the band opened the program with the "Electro-rate March." This number grew rapidly during the course of the program.

The first number in which the band and students combined was "Bright College Days." A number of men from the glee club led the singing of this number. "Campus Even Song," written by Donald L. Breed, '13, and Rodrick Beattie; "Cherished Courage" and "For Chicago Alma Mater" were other numbers.

The sing was concluded with the "Alma Mater," and the ringing of the chimes in Mitchel tower. Owing to the conflicting engagements, a number of the musical organizations expected were not present.

"By the very successful showing which was made at last year's afternoon sing and the effort today, which was surely a fair start, I believe that the student sentiment will develop the idea in fine shape," said Musical Director Stevens yesterday.

READ OVER LAST PROOFS ON 1914 CAP AND GOWN

Editor Finishes Last Work on Annual at Oshkosh Printery—Book Out Shortly.

George Lyman, managing editor of the Cap and Gown, returned from Oshkosh yesterday, where he has been reading the last proofs of the annual during the past week. All proof has been read, except that of the advertisements, which will be read by the business managers this week. One hundred and fifty pages of the 1914 Cap and Gown are already printed, and nearly all of the rest is set up. The completed book will contain 544 pages.

Eight two-colored plates will be used for heads in the athletic section. A buff-colored border will adorn every page, and the University coat of arms will be on the cover of the volume. The senior panel will have a reproduction of the Harper Memorial library.

The annual has been dedicated to Alonzo K. Parker, recorder of the University. The Divinity section has been dedicated to Professor Moncrief, the Medical division to Professor Wells, and the Law Section to Professor Biglow. Annuals bound in half morocco will cost $2.50, and those in full morocco, $3.00. The book will be on the campus the latter part of next week. Elections of next year's editors of the Cap and Gown will be held this week.

BADGERS PUT END TO CHAMPIONSHIP HOPES

Wisconsin Outplays Chicago Decisively and Takes Ten Inning Game, 5-4.

VARSITY HAS SERIOUS SLUMP

Wisconsin dealt a second blow to Chicago's hopes for the Conference baseball championship, and practically put Coach Page's team out of the Conference race by winning yesterday's game at Madison by a 5-4 score. The Badgers outplayed Chicago in all departments, and won decisively in the last of the tenth. Des Jardien and Baumgartner were both hit hard, yielding thirteen singles. Hoppert's single with the bases filled and one out in the tenth was responsible for the winning tally. Des Jardien faltered in this inning, and Page hurried Baumgartner in to stop the hard-hitting Badgers, but Lefty was unable to deliver the goods.

After trimming Illinois last Friday, and displaying the best brand of ball of the season, the Varsity has taken a serious slump and it is impossible to tell where the losing streak will end. Chicago will meet the hard-hitting Purdue team on Stagg field, Saturday, and will journey to Lafayette for a second game Tuesday. Unless Page can instill the confidence and punch, that has apparently disappeared, the Boilermakers will make a disastrous cleanup.

Loose Playing Responsible.

The reaction of the brilliant victory over the Orange and Blue seems to have been too much for the Varsity, in spite of the fact that the team is largely made up of veterans. Loose playing was responsible for Saturday's defeat by the Badgers. The men did not appear to be keyed up, and several times lost on chances that would have

SAYS "KEEP THE BABY WELL"

Dr. Helmholtz of Sprague Memorial Institute Discusses Preventive Medicine.

"Keep the baby well," was the advice of Dr. H. F. Helmholtz, of the Sprague Memorial institute, in his lecture on "Preventive Medicine in Relation to Infancy and Childhood," delivered yesterday afternoon in Physiology 25.

Dr. Helmholtz stated that disease is easier to prevent than to cure, that the medical profession is going into preventive medicine more and more, and that advances must be made to educate the public up to correct care of the child. He lauded the work of the Infant Welfare stations in the United States, and declared that the future of the nation lies in the hands of those who undertake this task.

"SECRECY."

Jack Tanner turns to Octavius and says, "Tell him, Tavy. You'll never be able to keep the matter secret unless everybody knows it." This seems to be the senior women's "honor" society, Nu Pi Sigma—at least in part. The ethics, the "essential democracy," the advisability, and all the other attributes of excessive secrecy in such societies, has been threshed out often enough. If necessary, we can even accept (with an effort, it is true) the claim that this "secrecy" is maintained in order to save the feelings of those senior women who do not "make" Nu Pi Sigma. We can bring ourselves to believe that Nu Pi Sigma fulfills a useful purpose in the University scheme of things. And some day, after exams, when we haven't got much of anything to do and can spare the time, we'll take a couple of days off and try to believe that Nu Pi Sigma is not undemocratic in spirit, and that its "sophomoric secrecy" is not merely a sort of sublimated snobbery. But we may perhaps be permitted a discreet smile at the "secrecy" of a society whose very name must not be mentioned—but whose members, nevertheless, wear a distinctive badge; whose list of members is above, and on no account to be publicly laid before the profane gaze of the hoi polloi—except once a year, when it appears in the Cap and Gown, a society upon whose members is conferred an "honor" in their election—an honor which they dare not acknowledge. May we not be permitted to smile? Thank you. Having been granted this inch, we'll take the traditional ell and indulge in a long, wholesome laugh—partly at ourselves, for we rather suspect we've been taking Nu Pi Sigma a bit too seriously.

Popularity.

In yesterday's Women's edition one of the contributors complains of the fact that in order to attain popularity—i. e., with the members of the opposite sex—a girl must be able to assume the character of a hopeless idiot. This seems to be a trifle over-rated. As a matter of fact, the writer has probably drawn a false conclusion from what was originally an unfortunate expression. This was a quotation from a theme, in which the statement appeared that the author always picked the lightest-headed girl he could find when choosing a companion for a dance or the theater. In the first place, this probably contains about as much truth as the statement that when the average business man—pardon, the tired business man—goes to a play, he selects a drama where the plot consists of a collapsible staircase, down which the two comedians fall at regular intervals. If the writer of the theme from which the quotation was taken meant that the Tired College Student preferred not to discuss "The Unrest of the Masses: Its Cause and Cure" when on entertainment bent, he was right. If he meant that the college man in general prefers the type of girl whose mental equipment is not capable of sustaining a logical idea, he was wrong. How often have we heard, "Some dancer! Yeh, in a peach of a dancer too. But I never try to talk to her? Why, that girl ain't got the brains of a hen." Cleopatra, Madame de Steel, Queen Elizabeth and one or two other ladies of history whom we might mention, attained a measurable degree of popularity in their respective days, yet they could hardly be characterized as "idiots." Altogether, we are inclined to disagree with the hypothesis—it is nothing more—a girl's popularity increases in direct proportion to her ability to unhinge her brain, provided nature has been cruel enough to endow her with one, and place it in a cool, dry place, until such time as she is alone, or at unaccompanied by the arbiter of "popularity."
